

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Water base coating material compositions form coating films of superior flat finish properties.

They contain silicone particles with at least two kinds of different average particle size.

According to the method of making the composition, a water base coating material composition can be formed by adding an aqueous suspension of silicone particles to a water base coating material composition where the aqueous suspension contains at least two kinds of silicone particles with different average particle size.

Continued on next page